Legend of Robin Hood has always been in England. Let's take a closer look at the map for where our tale unfolds:

Henry Pyle and other authors in the 19th century say Robin was from Locksley (part of modern-day Sheffield) in South Yorkshire.

Writings from the early 15th century of Robin Hood seem to contradict each other, with some saying he was from Locksley and others saying he was from Nottingham.

Robin Hood & the Talking of the Monks and Robyn Hode (Chapman)

The kyng gaf Moch and Litul Jon Twenti pound in sertan. And made them yemen of the And bade them go agayn.

He gaf John the seel in hand. The scheref for to bere. To bryng Robyn hym to. And no man do hym dere.

John toke his leve atoure kyng. The sothe as I yow say; The next way to Notyngham To take he yede the way.

Whan John came to Notyngham The gatis were sparrd ychon; John callid up the porter. He answerd sone anon.

"What is the cause," said Litul Jon, "Thou sparris the gates so fast?" "Because of Robyn Hode," said porter, "In depe prison is cast."
